Desktop Design

Add depth and realism when you add tone to an image in all your favorite programs

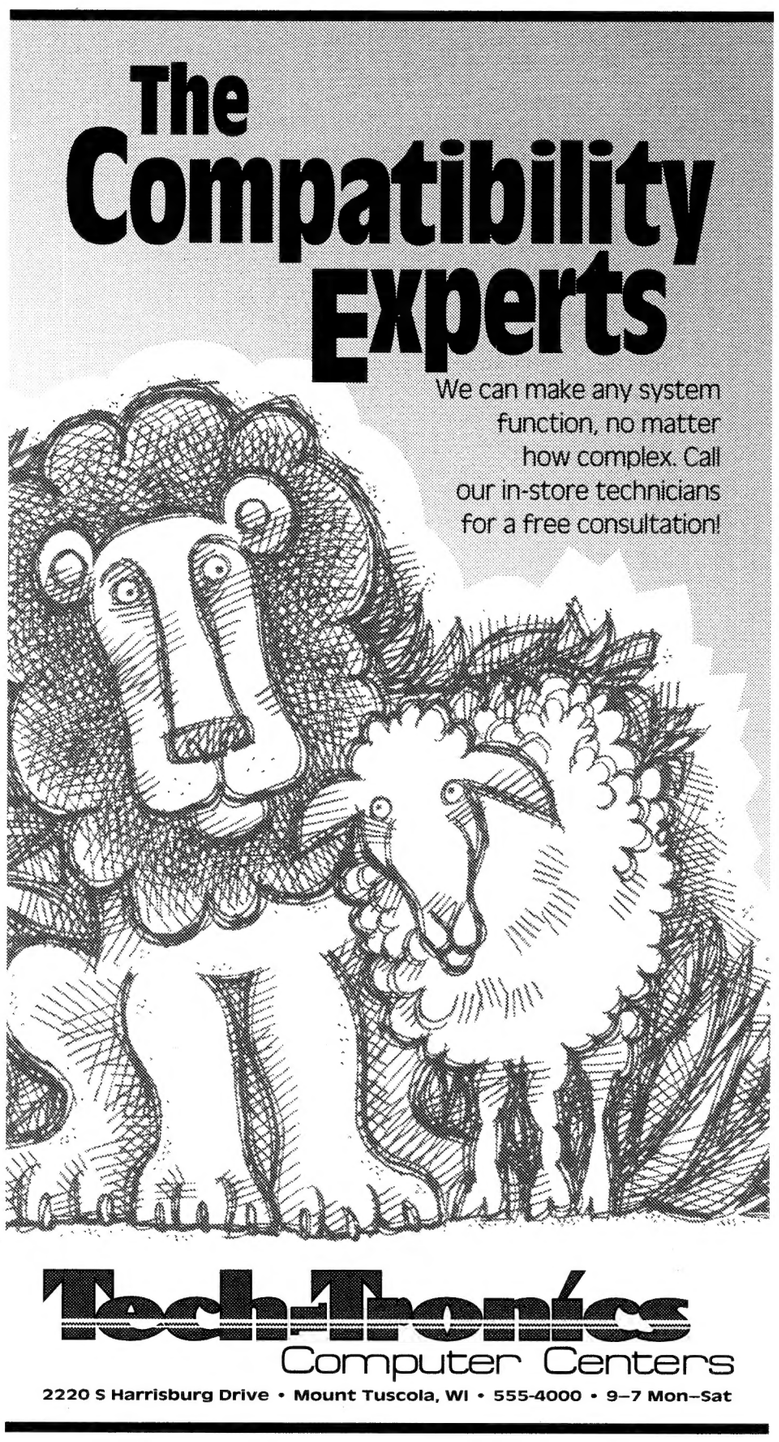
Adding tone — colors or shades of gray — is an easy way to give an image a new look. It can also help you guide the viewer's eye. We've detailed several techniques on these two pages, but here are the basic changes you can make in various programs:

In an image editing program: You can adjust the brightness and contrast of all or part of an image (see opposite for details). You can also select, say, all the black pixels and change their color.

In a draw program: You can open an EPS image, then select and fill contours. FreeHand also allows you to apply a tint to the black areas of a TIFF image (left).

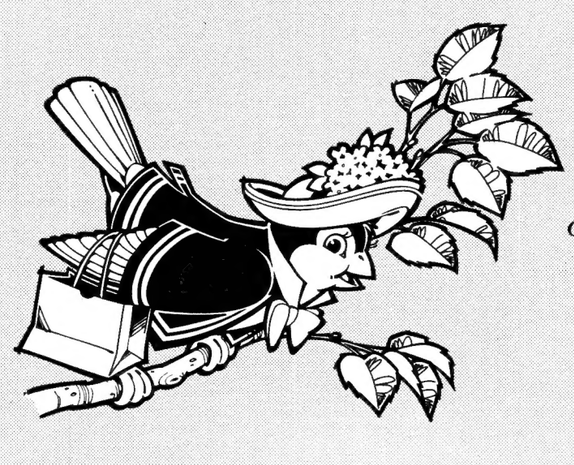
In a page layout program: You can modify a TIFF image. In QuarkXPress, choose Style, Other Contrast. In PageMaker, choose Element, Image Control.

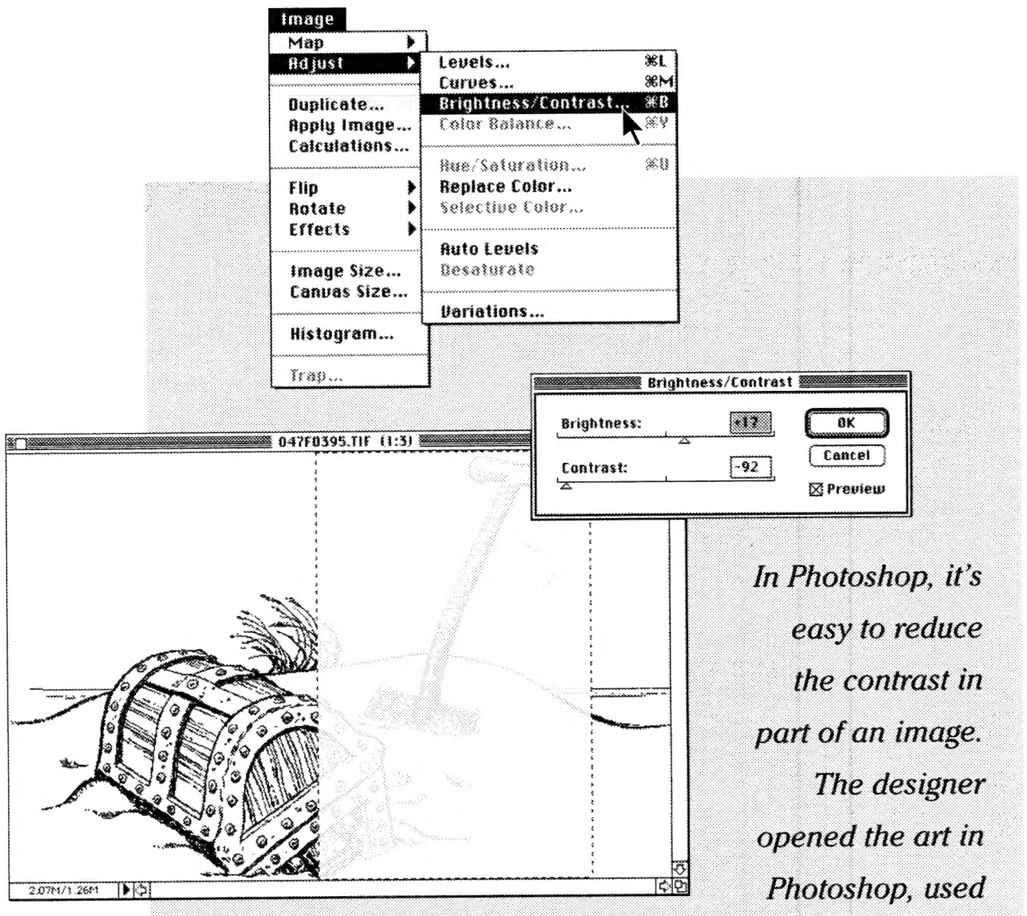
Lion and lamb: 060F0395.TIF; bird: 057F0395.EPS; treasure: 047F0395.TIF; sign: 039F0395.EPS; rod and reel: 031F0395.EPS.



In FreeHand, the designer chose a tint from the Tints palette, then dragged and dropped a swatch onto the art (left).

The on-disc art (below left) was opened in Illustrator for the ad at right. The designer selected contours and filled them with shades of gray for realism. A background gradient fill adds depth; the white oval at the top draws attention to the headline.





In Photoshop, it's easy to reduce the contrast in part of an image. The designer opened the art in Photoshop, used the rectangle marquee to select an area, and chose Image, Adjust, Brightness/Contrast (top). In the Brightness/Contrast dialog box (above), she increased the brightness and reduced the contrast in that area.

For a realistic gradation in the cut marks that define the shadows, the designer selected several contours at a time and applied the same gradient to all of them.

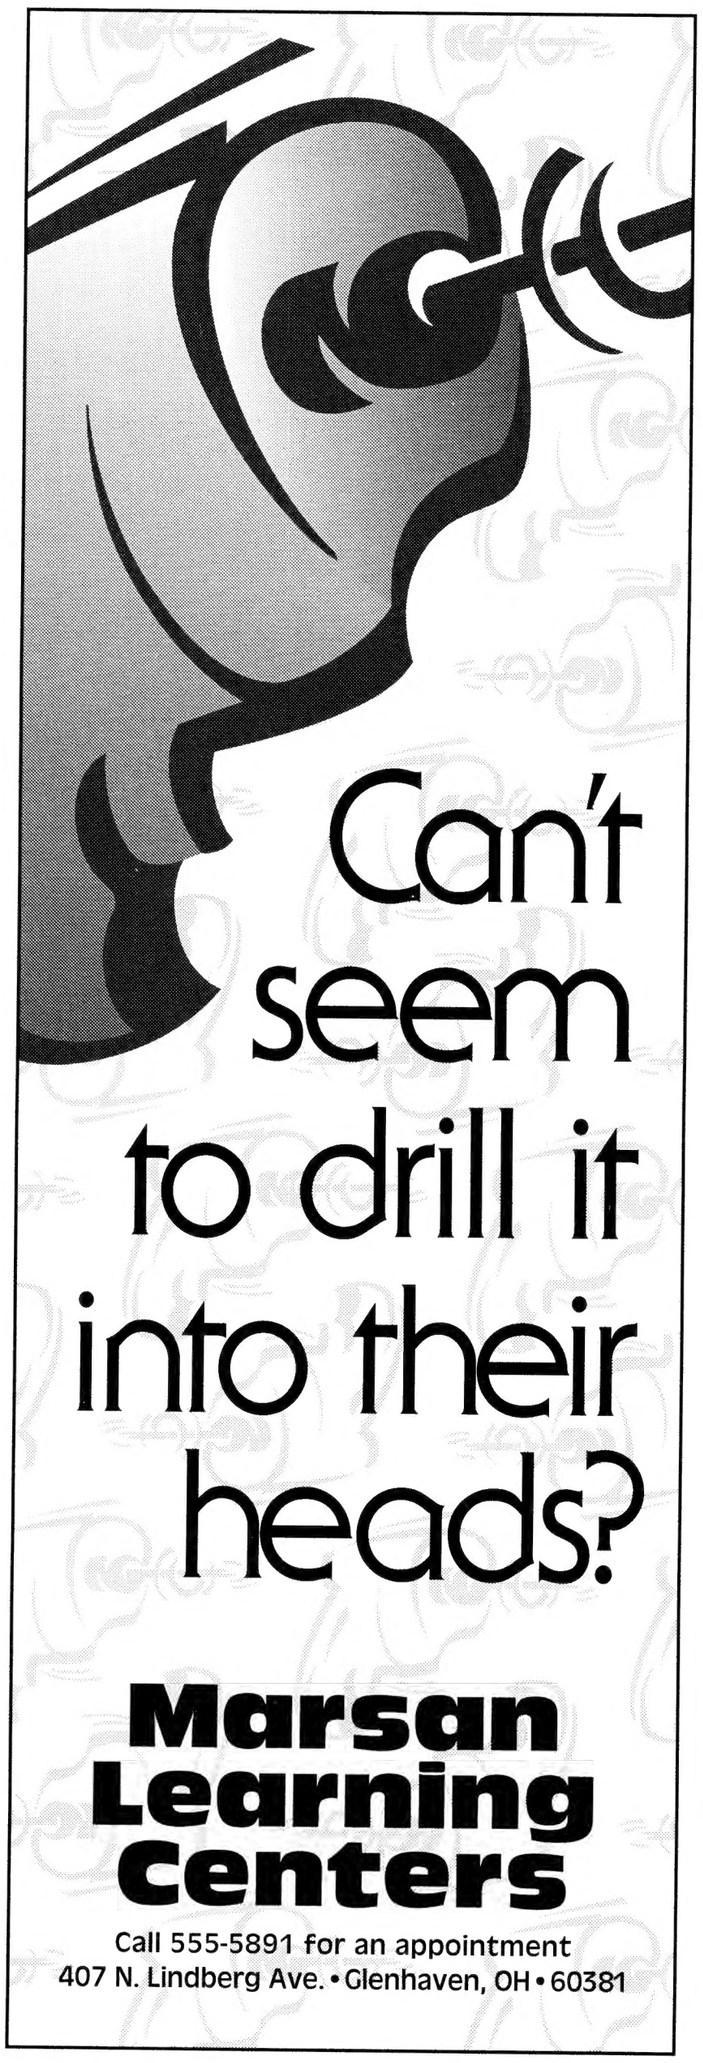
At far right, after filling contours with gray, the designer wanted the fishing line to pass in front of the 'E.' In Illustrator, she selected the type and chose Type, Create Outlines. Then she sent the 'E' to the back (above).

Step and Repeat: Make textures automatically



A step-and-repeat pattern adds texture to a background, as in the ad above. Be sure foreground items are bold enough to stand out.

A background texture adds depth to the ad at left, and it's easy to create — the designer copied the illustration, filled contours with light gray, rotated a copy, and made both copies into a repeating pattern in the background. Most draw and page layout programs offer handy shortcuts for this sort of step-and-repeat work; we detail three of them below.

A hint for reducing file sizes: When parts of objects are cropped by the edge of the ad, delete as much as you can of the parts that don't show; the computer still has to process all those contours, even if they're not visible. Illustrator's Pathfinder filter makes this easy for you: Be sure the border is in front, select both the border and any contours that overlap it, and choose Filter, Pathfinder, Crop (in Illustrator 5.0, Filter, Pathfinder, Crop Fill). Power drill: 043F0395.EPS.

In Illustrator: Select black contours of the drill and fill them with gray. Scale the drill, then select it and rotate it 180 degrees. Position the two drills and group them. Select grouped drills and command-shift-drag a duplicate to the right; the arrow changes to a double arrow (above) as you drag. Hit command-D to repeat the transformation.

In Freehand: Fill the drill with gray and scale it. Select it and hit command-= to clone it; select the clone and choose Arrange, Transform to show the Transform palette (right); set the rotation angle to 180 degrees. Group the drills. Clone the group and drag it where you want it, then hit command-D to repeat the transformation.

In QuarkXPress: You'll need to size and fill the drill in a draw program first, and if you want to reduce your processing time, it's best to do your rotating in a draw program, too. Then place the drill in Quark, select it, and choose Item, Step and Repeat. Enter the number and offset in the Step and Repeat dialog box (left). (Check the measurement palette to find out the size of your picture box; this will help you set the offset.)

TYPE TALK

Wrap type the easy way

STARTING THIS MONTH, ELECTRONIC PRINT MEDIA SERVICE WILL NO LONGER OFFER REFLECTED VERSIONS OF IMAGES.

Wrapping type around a shape is such a common technique that most page layout programs make it easy for you. One basic tip to remember: In both QuarkXPress and PageMaker, the wrap is a characteristic of the object that the type is to wrap around. So don't try to make type wrap by making changes to the type object itself. Here are details:

In QuarkXPress: Create a picture box, place the graphic and select it with the hand tool. Choose Item, Runaround. Set the runaround to Auto Image and adjust offsets. If this doesn't give you the desired effect, choose Manual Image. A dotted line will show the type wrap. Command-click to create or delete a point, then drag the points anywhere you want (top box, below).

In PageMaker: Place the graphic, select it, and choose Text Wrap from the Element menu. Click the center icon in the Wrap Option area; PageMaker will put a dotted line around the object, showing where the type wrap will be (bottom box, below). To adjust it, simply click to create or remove a point, then drag points. Shamrocks: 015F0395.EPS.

Welcome to Electronic Print Media Service! Here's how to get the most out of your art.

Numbering Conventions

Each image is identified by a number: for example, 001A0195.TIF.

• 001A0195.TIF: The first 3 digits identify the number of each image on your CD.

• 001A0195.TIF: The letter shows image type:

A: small-space ad: 1- or 2-column (2 1/16" or 4 1/4") layout including art, border and headline.

F: freestanding art: an illustration or heading. Freestanding art varies in size.

S: small TIFF ready-to-go ad at 2 columns (4 1/4") wide.

L: large TIFF ready-to-go ad at 4 columns (8 5/8") wide.

G: EPS ready-to-go ad at 3 columns (6 7/16") wide.

P: grayscale photograph.

C: color image. TIFF color images are provided in two sizes (8" high and 13" high) and may be modified in a paint or photo retouch program; EPS images are 8" high and may be modified in a draw program.
PC users: Color images are provided in RGB mode.
Macintosh users: Color images are provided in CMYK mode in two formats: TIFF and EPS Desktop Color Separations. When you place the separations in a page layout program, you will see five files included in one folder (a linking file and 4 color plates). Place the first file; it links to the color plates when you print. You need all five files to print the image .

D: duotone in two sizes, 8" high and 13" high. A grayscale version 6" high is also provided with a letter P.

T: tab cover. EPS tab covers are 8" high; TIFF tab covers are 8" high and 13" high.

• 001A0195.TIF: These digits identify the month and year of the issue.

• 001A0195.TIF: These letters indicate the file type: TIFF or EPS.

EPS (Encapsulated PostScript®) art is resolution independent: Resolution is determined by your PostScript output device. Reducing or enlarging an EPS image does not affect quality.

TIFF (Tagged Image File Format) art is bitmapped, and resolution affects quality. Grayscale and color TIFFs are provided at 170 dpi. Black and white TIFFs require higher resolution for quality reproduction, so they are provided at 300 dpi. Enlarging a TIFF image lowers its resolution; reducing it increases its resolution.
